Dear Sir,-

Some months ago a man named W. H. Sale collected from various parties in Ottawa, sums of money to cover cost of binding complimentary sets of a work entitled "The World's History and Its Makers". It was said that this work was to be under your editorship and that a number of others connected with Toronto University were taking part in it. Nothing has been heard for some months from Sale or of the binding for which the parties paid and we will be glad to know whether there is in fact in contemplation such a work as described. If so, and if you have to do with it, we would be obliged for any information which you may be able to afford concerning Mr. Sale and the arrangements made by him.

Yours truly,

John Scott MacLaren & Kelley

Gentlemen:

I have a letter from you to-day stating that a man named W. H. Sale collected from various parties in Ottawa sums of money to cover the cost of binding complimentary sets of a work entitled "The World's History and Its Makers", also that this work was to be under my editorship and that a number of others connected with the University were taking part in it. I know nothing about the book nor the man. Whether there are members of the University of Toronto connected with such a publication I cannot say, but assuredly they had no right to use my name or that of the University with it.

I am,

Yours sincerely,

President.
